(By Associated Press.)

Chicago—Nearly all the tragedies which stand out as dramatic spectacles in the annals of American Tuesday, present women in the leading roles. They have their settings in six sections of the country.

Six sensational murder cases, five with women as defendants, are in various stages of trial. Another woman, "Peggy" Beal, won her freedom from a jury in Kansas City last night and a seventh, Madelyne Obenchain, awaits her third trial in Los Angeles.

"Eternal Triangle"

Most of the cases present the "eternal triangle" with variations. Briefly, some of the cases appear as follows:

Los Angeles—Arthur Burch of Evanston, Ill., faces his third trial on a charge of killing J. B. Kennedy, eight women and four men constitute the jury with two women as alternate jurors. Madelyne Obenchain awaits her third trial on the same charge.

Los Angeles—The jury to try Mrs. Clara Phillips, accused of beating Mrs. Albert Meadows to death with a hammer, was tentatively completed. Mrs. Meadows was the alleged rival for the love of Mrs. Phillips' husband.

Philadelphia—Mrs. Catherine Rosier, accused of killing her husband, Oscar Rosier, and his stenographer, Mildred Shackelford, on trial for the murder of Miss Shackelford.

In Movie World

Hakensack, N. J.—George Cline, motion picture director; Alton Thornton and Charles Schullion, brothers-in-law, on trial for the murder of John Dargen, motion picture actor. The defense began its testimony Tuesday.

Cleveland—Mrs. Mabel Champion, 25, on trial for the alleged slaying of Thomas O'Connell, carnival promoter.

White Cloud, Mich.—Mrs. Mabel Hodel, on trial for the killing of her father-in-law, David Hodel, with a hatchet, repudiated her previous confession, declaring the confession was obtained by threats of being haunted by the spirits of her father-in-law and her husband, Romie Hodel.

slaughter Charge.

FRENCH, Cal.—George T. Harlow, whom a coroner's jury held to have committed "justifiable homicide" when he clubbed his 19-year-old wife to death after he had found her with a young man in their home early Sunday, will be tried for manslaughter. Tuesday. The district attorney has drawn up a complaint, which he expected to file Tuesday.

H. C. Blanchard, 19, said to have been the youth who was with Mrs. Harlow, was arrested Monday and held to 20 days in the county jail for disorderly conduct.

Harlow, arrested despite the coroner's verdict, was held in the county jail Tuesday. He is 30 years old and has been married for 10 years. The tragedy occurred at the Harlow home at Northfork. Harlow said he returned unexpectedly and discovered Blanchard in the bedroom, man and girl embracing. Blanchard escaped. One shot was fired, accidentally, according to Harlow—who admitted that he then shot his wife over the head with the shotgun until she was dead.

"I didn't mean to kill her," he told the authorities, "I just realized something terrible had happened and I went mad."

LOS ANGELES—Staps to the feud between students of the University of Southern California and the University of California, southern branch, are being taken by officials of both institutions.

Excitement following the invasion of the campus, in which 20 students were injured, rested for a day, only to be revived with an attack of William Spikes, southern branch student, by three unidentified men, who bound him in his bed in his home and branded him on the forehead with the letters "U. S. C." with acid on Monday.

Each student outbreak only further inflames the spirit of the students, said Dr. E. C. Moore, director of southern branch, "and I am afraid they may resort to extreme violence unless the matter is quickly dealt with."

Widow Describes Night Slaying at
New Jersey Farm

New Brunswick, N. J.—The name of the woman reputed to have witnessed the double murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, today became known. She is Mrs. Jane Gibson, a widow, who, with her son, conducts a 60-acre farm on Hamilton road in a sparsely settled section several miles from here. Before harvest time her fields were frequently entered at night and robbed.

Shortly before the double murder she decided to end this thievery. Each night she lay in wait. Near by was tethered a saddled mule for purposes of pursuit.

The night of the murder she was said to have told investigators, she was riding down DeBussey's lane through the Phillips farm when she saw in a field the dim outlines of two men and two women. She became curious, halted her mule and watched. There was a moment of confusion, the sound of a pistol shot, a streak of flame and one of the men fell; then, a moment later, four more shots and one of the women dropped. The man and the woman stood over the slain couple, the story continues, and the name of the man was spoken in horror by the woman.

Mrs. Gibson then was said to have become frightened and to have turned her mule toward home.

MEYER, WAR VET,
DIES OF INJURIES
Fall on Pitchfork Handle Fatal to Henry Meyer—Made Brave Fight.

Fighting to the end, Henry C. Meyer, Jr., injured by a fall off a hay stack last Tuesday afternoon at a nearby hospital at 4 p. m., Tuesday.

Given only three days to live after the accident, Meyer, aged 28, made such a "battle for life" that doctors and physicians were hopeful for a while that he might pull through. Complications, due to being unable to pass off bodily poisons, caused his death.

Only once did the young man show signs of weakening. That was momentarily at noon Monday. He raised up and called the doctor to his bedside and said:

"Doctor, I made a mistake today. I let a bit, but I am going to keep fighting."

He died several hours later.

Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Meyer, 614 South Jackson street, sat with great force upon the handle of a pitchfork while sliding off the top of a hay stack at 2 p. m. of the Janesville Sunday of this city. The savers are entered his internal regions, puncturing the intestines and halted against the ribs of his left side. His plucky battle caused the admission to the hospital staff, but many who followed his case.

Henry C. Meyer was born in Janesville, April 15, 1894. He entered the army at Camp Wadsworth, N. Y., in 1918, serving 14 months, 12 1/2 of which were as a private with the sixth machine gun battalion of the 84th division in the battles of Alsace-Lorraine. Upon his return to Janesville, he became a member of the Richard Ellis post of the American legion at Janesville.

Brother killed in France. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Meyer, six brothers and three sisters. Another brother lost his life in action in France. The brothers are Arthur, George, Walter, Alfred and Roy of this city. The sisters are Mrs. Lawrence Young, Wilmet, Minn.; and the Misses Clara and Alice, Janesville.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p. m. at the church of the Holy Trinity, 1414 Broadway, with Pastor C. J. Muller, officiating. Interment will be in Oak Hill cemetery. The local American Legion will furnish the hearse and conduct the services at the grave.

Dady to Direct
Salvation Army
Drive, Nov. 1-2

Announcement was made Tuesday of the appointment of John Dady, this city, as chairman of the Salvation Army campaign for the northern district of Rock county and the postponement of the drive until next Wednesday and Thursday. Meetings were held Tuesday at which time plans were to be made for putting the campaign across. The situation in Janesville is one that demands immediate attention that the work may be continued.

A total of $2,600 must be raised here and the remainder of the $10,000 in the northern district which includes the cities of Janesville and Edgerton.

News for Farmers

Farm Bureau Official Information

PRaises ROCK CO. AT THE "NATIONAL"

W. J. Dougan Tells Why Wisconsin Is Leading Dairy State.

People attending the recent national dairy show at the Madison Coliseum heard about Rock county through W. J. Dougan, Deloit dairyman, who spoke at the meeting of the cow testing associations. This dairyman is never too busy to work for his country, and he has been largely through his efforts testing associations have come to the front in Rock county.

"Have you noticed in looking over the department of agriculture exhibit the dairy show how Wisconsin stands first in the dairy world?" asked Mr. Dougan in his address. "Why is it that this little state way off from the great eastern market should rise to this prominence? Why can Rock county rank first for three successive years in competition with the many bustling counties of the nation?"

Dairy Development
"Way back in the pioneer days a little group of far-seeing men, 'emancipated to the service of their fellowmen, organized the Wisconsin Dairy Farm Bureau association. This organization has promoted all that is best in dairying. They backed cow testing work and have been promoting associations for years."

"In Wisconsin and especially in Rock county there is a spirit of cooperation among the farmers themselves and between the business men of the city and the business of the dairy. The Rock county banks have made it possible for the farmer to have working capital at moderate interest even during the financial pinch of the last two years. It's no wonder that the hard times as experienced by other sections of the country."

"In Wisconsin we have an energetic Farm Bureau. Rock county Farm Bureau is working in harmony with and assisting all farmer organizations. Last year we needed a little financial aid in organizing cow testing associations away from Wisconsin, so they voted a substantial appropriation for this work."

Why Wisconsin Leads
"Why is Wisconsin first in dairying? The answer is simple—progressive views and progressive organizations together with a widespread and increasing number of cow testing associations. Before Minnesota came to the fore, Wisconsin was the dairy state. It has to get more than eight-tenths of one per cent of her dairy cows into testing associations. Wisconsin has 61,000 of her dairy cows in 123 associations and we are still increasing."

"No one in Rock county would rather see 10 testing associations formed than W. J. Dougan. In this number he sees Rock county advancing in her right place as a dairy center—that of being first in the leading dairy state."

State Must Guard "Co-op" Marketing Declares Nordman

Co-operative marketing and problems of marketing methods generally are still in their experimental stage—a fact that many persons fail to realize in directing their course against the state department of markets for its activities. Edward Nordman, commissioner of that body declares in a statement today.

Mr. Nordman expresses the belief that many of the critics of his department misunderstand the purposes of his department, the methods it follows and the results it has so far obtained. They are looking for immediate change in marketing conditions and methods, when successful change is a matter he says, which can only come about through careful experiments, and then their success will depend upon general economic conditions prevailing in the country.

"Marketing activities in the field of agriculture are of comparatively recent date in this country," Mr. Nordman advises his critics. "In many cases tangible proof as to the value of reforms in marketing are still lacking," he says, "adding that the exercise of force, centrally, cannot be applied in most cases by reason of the different basic conditions."

Results Wanted
"Because of these difficulties," he continues, "the department of markets must of necessity play the part of a marketing experiment station, which like its prototype, the agricultural experiment station, has for its purpose the carrying out of experiments in marketing, the application of proposed measures and the analysis of results obtained. Only by these methods is it possible to decide which measures have proved of real practical value and should be adopted, and which ones should be rejected as being not only worthless but detrimental to business, industry and agriculture."

"People generally want immediate and tangible results, and they expect the same thing in regard to marketing, without realizing that technical questions of production are simple as compared to the problems of marketing. Persons interested in improving marketing conditions are compelled, to a large extent, to probe in the dark. The complexity of economic relations which form the basis and the background of the marketing problem and such methods have proved their value by experience and practical application."

Thorough Study
Concluding his statement, Mr. Nordman said that the marketing problem is complicated by the fact that every step, every change for the better in the field of marketing of farm products as well as the marketing of commodities is intimately connected with and affected by the

Cabbage Growers Appeal to State For Freight Cars

Cabbage growers around Racine and Kenosha have appealed to Governor Blaine for aid in relieving the car shortage that exists in their vicinity. They say that their crop must be moved within the next two weeks if the full return is to be realized.

"Unhindered efforts and cold blooded policies of the Milwaukee railway have left us in a tight hole," the telegram received by Governor Blaine from J. C. Connelly, a cabbage grower says. "We need your help and need it badly and quickly," the message added, saying that the cars must be had if the crop is going to be moved."

The car shortage for carrying both potatoes and cabbage is acute in Wisconsin. Large crops have been produced, while the Milwaukee railway equipment to the west for hauling grain and to coal mines for carrying fuel, have further complicated the situation for the farmers.

Robinsons Enter For American Royal In Kansas City

The Robinsons and Son Herd, Evansville, has entered 35 head of breeding cattle in the Herford classes at the American Royal livestock exposition in Kansas City, Nov. 16 to 25.

The Robinsons and Son herd was a prominent winner at the Wisconsin state fair this fall. The herd will meet the strongest competition of the year at the American Royal, where 600 Herfords are entered in what officials of the American Herford association say will be "the greatest show of Herfords ever assembled in one arena."

The governor of Indiana, United States senator from Kentucky and other notables in the political world will exhibit their prize Herfords. Gov. Warren G. McGray is sending 25 head from his great farm at Kentland, Ind., and Senator J. H. Camden will show 25 head from his estate at Versailles, Ky.

Other famous herds are entered from Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Texas, and Illinois—states noted for the excellence of their Herfords. Brockvale Farm, Windsor, Mass., will exhibit 12 head. Other states represented are Colorado, Mississippi, Nebraska, West Virginia, Oklahoma, Wisconsin, and Montana.

Herford circles of the 1922 show are practically equal to those of last year, when 425 head were shown. In 1920 424 head were exhibited. The 600 entries for the coming Royal sets a new record in numerical strength and will make the exhibit the greatest in American Herford history.

general conditions prevailing. The basic cause of the slowness in solving the marketing problem, he believes, is due to the fact that most people are ignorant of the intimate relation that exists between good markets and a just distribution of wealth.

Footville-Evansville Tests
The production of the cows in the Footville-Evansville cow testing association during the last month was lower than usual since many of the cows freshened either in the late fall or early winter and were low on milk. Few cows that have freshened have made creditable records.

Another illustration of the value of feeding grain as a supplement to pasture was furnished by the 16 cows in the herd of Bert Strickland. All of these cows were well advanced in their lactation periods and a month ago they dropped off 30 pounds of butter fat from the previous month. Cows that fed during the last month and the last testing day for this herd found the cows producing an amount of butter fat equal to that produced two months ago and at a feed cost of 19 cents per pound of butter fat. These cows were fed during September had they not been fed additional concentrates. They will continue to milk longer and heavier and return more profit because of the extra feed.

Milking Shorthorns from the Harvey Little herd lead the association, a noteworthy fact for this breed.

The following table gives the names and records of the cows in the association which have produced more than 40 pounds of butterfat during the period of 30 days ending Oct. 10, 1922.

$100,000 SEWER IS 48 PCT. FINISHED

3,000 Feet Left to Complete—Start Work on Opposite End.

With the $100,000 Eastern avenue main outlet sewer 48 percent completed and construction going ahead at the rate of 25 to 30 feet a day, even greater progress will be made beginning this week with the McFarlane Construction company starting work on the easterly end and working west to meet the other crew. A new excavator is being placed at the corner of Eastern and Deloit avenues and laying of the 48 and 48-inch pipe will be started from this end.

Blast Big Storm Sewer
Considerable delay was experienced last week when it was found necessary to blast out a section of the main storm sewer running from the Sunsum plant and across Eastern avenue to the river. This big twin box culvert, 6 by 15 feet, built of concrete and heavily reinforced, had to be cut through in order to allow the Eastern avenue sanitary sewer to be laid under it.

It took five days to blast out a section of it, lay the other sewer underneath it, and then rebuild it. Several charges of dynamite were necessary.

Half-Mile Completed
The McFarlane company has laid 2,747 feet to date, according to the record book kept by the city engineering department. The specifications call for the laying of 5,845 feet, meaning that the work is nearly half finished, or nearly two-thirds completed when the big difficulties that have been overcome are considered. The company has 1,495 feet more of 48-inch pipe to lay, 1,500 feet of 48-inch and 33 feet of 39-inch.

Twenty-four feet was the record for Saturday while pipe laid, Friday, measured 26 feet, the highest single day's run has been 48 feet. The company has shown new life since Sept. 14. Since that time 645 feet has been laid. In the entire five months preceding that date, less than 200 feet had been installed.

A pile-driver is being used to drive metal sheeting for work on the west end and sheeting will be pounded in by hand when work starts behind the second excavator on the east end.

BROOKLYN
Brooklyn—Mr. and Mrs. Emil Mason, Evansville, moved to Richmond Center and spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burnham. At Madison the Masons were joined by Roy Mason and wife, who accompanied them on their trip.

THE GAZETTE'S PLATFORM

Send every effort to finish the high school building so it may be used before the end of 1922. With the completion, the problem of a community center will be solved. Janesville needs and should have ample hotel facilities to care for the public. That will be especially true when the high school is completed and the auditorium is available for the largest conventions. Finish the paving of Janesville streets as soon as they can be. The necessary expenditures in taxation so as not to place a heavy burden on the people. Give the city a new fire engine. There is now available $15,000 for this purpose and it should not be used for any other. Finish the city and county hospital. Memorial building for World War soldiers. The living and the dead—to be also a historical building.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST ARTIST.

Autumn is late with the mural decorations this year. The Head Master of the world's greatest Academy of Fine Arts was lazing about and indolent until, last week, not half doing the work required by the curriculum. But since then he and his pupils have been frantically busy. Only the willows along the river bank or here and there a sheltered clump of elms have escaped. The oaks are brazenly red gowned, the maples and ash are giddy in yellow and on the borderland, when there is no breeze, the sumac forms a hedge of deep vermilion. All at once it seems wooded hills and plains have dotted the summer green and as though a new season of gaiety had been proclaimed, in a twinkling new gowns have appeared and true to the decree of fashion for the fall and winter have added all the splendor and glory of tints and hues and shades.

This lingering lateness has saved all the leaves to be colored at one and the same time. They have fallen from the hickory trees only and the bare branches and shaggy bark of these stand out like warnings of death in a garish mass of color all about. It is as though a fate and a funeral were taking place from the same great edifice.

Along the roadsides the grass, with no account of the calendar, and intrigued by fair days and warm, has started to put on its bright green of spring. In a few orchards blossoms appear and a rose, stealing forth, investigates with timid fragrance the prospect of summer warmth. A few days ago the sun, as rare as June; added, as it lingered in evening farewell, its own handiwork with cloud tinted background-taking lavish toll from the chromatics of the spectrum.

In the sky, bundles of fleece and scattered feather of cirro-cumulus, like rose petals, tipped with silver and purple and gray, fell into the very crown of barbaric color which crested the woodland of a high hill. Flame touched the heights, tongues of fire danced among the transformed olive green. It was Nature's farewell party to summer, the last parade on the Field of the Cloth of Gold.

From the very top of the Rock River valley to where the river widens far south of us, the Painter seems to have created a new and greater and more exquisite beauty. Only in the technical terms of the art critic can it all be conceived. Winter may come with its snow and sleet and chilling rain, its fog and mists, its discomforts to old age and its promise of sport and inspired swiftness of action to the young, and we will not complain. We have had our summer with all its compensations; harvest has passed and now for a time the art exhibit demands that we sit and fill our souls with the harmony of a glorious prismatic symphony. Drab indeed is man or woman who cannot appreciate it all. It is worth turning the eyes a moment to look, at least as long as the present would bow the head when the Angelus comes stealing across the fields from the village church chimneys.

At the last report Kemal Pasha was still holding tightly to his Angora.

JUSTICE WILLIAM R. DAY.

Justice William R. Day of the supreme court of the United States will resign and another vacancy will be filled by President Harding. Justice Day is beyond the age of retirement, but he will not be idle. He is to act as umpire in the German-American claims adjustment and that is a long and severe task. Justice Day is a small, wiry man, the smallest member of the supreme court physically, though far from being the smallest mentally. He is an Ohio man, born on the Connecticut Reserve, of New England stock, and when appointed to the bench by President Roosevelt, was judge of the U. S. Circuit court sitting at Cincinnati. But before that he had been secretary of state and in that capacity carried on the diplomatic negotiations arising from the Spanish American war and finally settled the war itself for the United States by acting on the peace commission at Paris. Justice Day has had a long and honorable career. He has never been in the fierce light of public opinion or the center of quarrels. That is not his temperament. His is the analytical and judicial mind. The supreme court will suffer a distinct loss in his resignation and President Harding has an additional burden in selecting a man for the vacancy.

It looks as though the Ninth district might go to Graess.

In spite of the clear road ahead for the candidates for state offices and the United States senate at the primary on the republican ticket, Gazette news dispatches indicate a decidedly interesting contest over the legislature. The control of the legislature is vital to the administration if the socialist program is to be carried out and we are to achieve the distinction of being the nonpartisan

A Historic Virginia City

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Fredericksburg, Va.—If a city can have a hobby, the hobby of Fredericksburg is its historic past. It has been claimed that Fredericksburg has more ancient, reminiscent and historical buildings than any other town of its size in the country. Fredericksburg's patriotic and antiquarian societies have delved into records and they have reverently preserved what they could of the ancient buildings about which traditions cling. The result is that an historic atmosphere overspreads the town down to the very edge of the business district, where automobiles, drygoods and groceries are being sold in lively, twentieth century fashion. Outlets of these bustling streets Fredericksburg is a beautiful, quiet old place with attractive homes set in old-fashioned gardens, and with the Rappahannock flowing by at one side.

The river has its share of historic association, especially at this point. This is the place where Washington threw a stone—or as some biographers say, a Spanish dollar—across, and then swam over after it. This is the river, too, up which Capt. John Smith sailed in 1608 and it was near here that he was attacked by the fierce Rappahannock Indian tribe.

A little more than a century later, in 1752, George Washington was born, and the same year Fredericksburg became an incorporated city. A few more years and George was attending Parson Mary's school in Fredericksburg. George Washington made history in more than one house in this Virginia town. Lafayette stopped at several houses on his visits here. Patrick Henry, James Monroe, Charles Dickens and Washington Irving are among the other noted visitors. But the most picturesque of all the famous folk about whom Fredericksburg citizens repeat old anecdotes is Mary Ball Washington, mother of George.

The Mary Ball house is one of the main sights of the place. It is a modest, cream-colored frame residence, a story and a half in height, with dormer windows projecting from the abruptly sloping roof.

Most historians say Mary Washington moved into this colonial residence when her son, George, was 43 years old. It is certain she spent the last years of her life here. Her son's rise to fame made no difference in her style of living. She knew no excuse for idleness, and so long as her strength permitted she continued to weave, bake and direct her servants.

She drove daily in a gig across the Rappahannock to the farm on which her children had spent their childhood. A spot on Main street is still pointed out as the place where Mrs. Washington always stopped her carriage in order to drink a toddy. After taking this stimulant she would direct her driver to proceed to the farm, where she went about inspecting the farm work and perhaps cutting slips for her home garden. A jug of water from the spring out of which her husband and children had once been accustomed to drink was also carried back to town regularly by Mrs. Washington.

When Lafayette came to pay his respects to the mother of his great friend, Mrs. Washington, then an old woman, was found busily burning weeds in her garden. She was dressed in plain homespun and wore a white lawn cap and a straw hat on her head. She greeted the French visitor cordially and led him into the house to have spread gingerbread and a mint julep.

Most of the stories of Mary Washington stress the stern, Roman matron side of her character. She never indulged in demonstrations of sentiment, yet she undoubtedly had a tender spot in her heart for her son George. The honored and dignified Washington was always just her son George to his mother. There is a tradition that one day he rode up with several officers to pay his mother a visit. She saw them from the window, the story goes, and called out a greeting.

"I have just finished baking pies," she added, "and there is enough for you, George, and one of your friends. So choose your man and come right in."

Another characteristic story is told of Washington's visit not long after the battle of Yorktown. She had not seen her son for many years. The years of the war, though couriers had kept her informed of his achievements. "I am glad to see you, George. You have altered considerably," was her calm greeting.

Neither mother nor son had any reference to make to victories or fame. George was a fine son in Mrs. Washington's eyes, and she took it for granted that he should do great things.

When a delegation came that day to invite her to attend the Peace Ball, she accepted graciously. She appeared at the ball the stars shined, dressed neatly in a black silk dress, and with a low, simple, fashionable hair and a white chin. She stayed a while, replying with dignity to the compliments showered upon her and then she left the brilliant company, saying, "Come, George. It is time for me to be at home."

This Peace Ball, given in honor of Washington, is said by some historians to have taken place at the Rising Sun Tavern, one of Fredericksburg's most historic buildings. Others hold that the tavern has no rooms large enough to have been the scene of so elaborate an affair. The dispute has never been completely settled, since both the old market house and the tavern have their supporters, armed with arguments.

The Rising Sun Tavern is not altogether dependent on the Peace Ball, however, in its claim to fame. It was built by Charles Washington, and is standing yet on Main street, an ancient story and a half frame building that has sheltered numerous great persons in the height of its career.

When the Revolutionary war was brewing, this tavern was regarded as a hotbed of sedition because of the meetings of patriots held there. George Washington was sometimes one of the group.

Washington sat by the fire in the Rising Sun tap room and wrote that famous entry in his diary, that he had played cards and lost as usual, and that he was afraid those Fredericksburg fellows were so smart for him.

Lafayette stopped at the Rising Sun, and tourists climb the steep stairs to see the four poster bed in the attic story where the French hero slept. Lafayette must needs have stooped to avoid bumping his head as he moved about the corners of his tiny bedroom with its sloping roof.

Fredericksburg is not satisfied with its record for having so many famous buildings. The city is now planning to add to its collection Kenmore, the home of Washington's sister, Betty Washington Lewis.

JUST FOLKS

WHEN REDESKINS BIT THE DUST
Do you remember the days that were.
The days of "Chunky" and Bill and Joe,
And you and I and the crowd and the stir?
Of the books we read in the days ago.
"The trashy things," as our parents said,
And frequently burned in their deep disgust,
And the joy of us as we sat and read:
"Then two more redskins bit the dust!"

Those were the days of the Golden West,
The days of Custer and Buffalo Bill.
When we followed the scouts to the mountain crest
And breathlessly watched them shoot to kill.
We knew the meaning of every stroke
The signs to fear and the guides to trust.
And we thrilled with joy when the rifles spoke
And two more redskins bit the dust.

Out in the barn in those golden days,
In secret places were our pamphlets hid,
And there we followed the trapper's way,
And glided in all that they said or did.
Adventure gripped at each youthful throat,
For we knew the meaning of savage lust.
But this was the life that we loved to enact:
"Then two more redskins bit the dust!"

Now we have boys and they're reading books,
Books of splendor and books of worth,
But the tales we love are secret books,
Have passed away from this lettered earth.
And I sit and smile as I watch them there,
And I think of the days when our tales were Just
The bark of rifles upon the air—
"And two more redskins bit the dust!"

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

A KENTIAN'S BALLAD.

Up to the milkman's clasp call—
His bottles rattle in the hall,
It's five o'clock and that is all.
He says the milk is raised in price
Since the day before, and that is nice—
Sing-ho, for the merry milkman.
Who pumps all night—
A toast to the cheerful milkman.

Back to the old hay to enjoy
The milk, then comes the butcher's boy,
A limb of the faithful hop-pole,
Who brings, regardless of expense,
The steak which hangs on eight cents—
Sing-ho, for the honest butcher.
Who hates to charge
A price that he has no right to.

And then the piercing summons: "Ice!"
"How much today? It's up in price."
Thirty cents for the ice, then,
Shake a leg or you'll be too late.
I haven't got all day to wait.
Sing-ho, for the humble ice man,
For water's sake.
So ice is high—
A toast to the modest ice man.

The tap-tap-tap of the landlord's cane
Is heard ere the day begins to wane.
He is forced to raise the rent again
For his losing a fortune every day.
To the poor tenant he has his way—
Sing-ho for the starving landlord.
Can't save a cent
With all his rent.
Oh, pass the hat for the landlord.

Some day, upon a lonesome lea,
An epitaph for all to see,
To a victim of prosperity,
Who gave his all that others might
File up their fortunes' snug and tight—
Sing-ho for the U. S. Consumer.
Give him your vote
As the world's prize poet—
"Here Lies Old U. S. Consumer."

Who's Who Today

ANDREW BONAR LAW
Andrew Bonar Law, who was made lord by King George to form a new British cabinet, which he signed with Premier Lloyd George, was born and received his early education on this side of the Atlantic. He was born in New Brunswick, Canada, on September 16, 1858, and attended school there before going to Glasgow, Scotland, where he finished high school. He has given the greater part of his life to the iron business, becoming noted as an iron merchant.

He first drew notice in politics when he entered the house of commons in 1906. Eleven years later he was chosen leader of the Unionist party. He is given credit for much of the growth of that party. In 1915 he entered the cabinet as secretary of the colonies.

The following year he was named chancellor of the exchequer and also assumed the government leadership of the house of commons.

He served as a member of the British peace delegation at Versailles in 1919, and then, a little over three years ago, retired from politics on account of ill-health.

It was the Unionist party, headed by Law, that brought about Lloyd George's resignation. Law refused to give coalition party a vote of confidence. Now Law assumes the task of forming his own cabinet and carrying on the British state business.

It is believed, however, that he has agreed to hold the Budget for a short time, on account of his poor health.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Oct. 24, 1882.—Funeral services for Judge H. S. Conger were held this afternoon from his residence in the First ward. He was one of the city's most prominent leaders. Yesterday, in municipal court, Conger was charged with robbery of one carrying concealed weapons, and two of drunks were disposed of. The court adjourned in the afternoon to attend the funeral of Judge Conger.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Oct. 24, 1892.—J. B. Doe denies that the Doe property on West Milwaukee street is out of the market as a city hall site. He agrees to sell 132 feet on this street, or a larger amount if needed, for any reasonable terms.—Beloit wants a second fire company. All the machinery in the J. B. Doe fire engine was in operation today.—Herman Bichels left last night for Buffalo to attend the national convention of the carriage-makers.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Oct. 24, 1902.—Joseph Cankton, formerly of this city, has been signed as manager of the Milwaukee club on the American Baseball League.—Janesville high school meets Brodhead here tomorrow.—The King Pins and the All-Stars will start the city bowling league games tonight.—Badger state telephone men are in session at the Myers house.

TEN YEARS AGO

Oct. 24, 1912.—La Follette will be here Saturday to give an address, coming from Beloit, where he talks in the afternoon.—F. S. Sheldon, Miss Margaret Patterson, Helen A. Anderson and Dr. George K. R. are officers in a newly organized Physical Culture club here. Prof. D. D. Marross will lead the first meeting next Monday at the Methodist church.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

BRONCHIAL LUBRICATORS

One of the most solidly established and generally accepted principles of treatment for any of the acute respiratory infections of which acute bronchitis is one, acute coryza another, is the relief of croupous congestion. Congestion means too much blood in the affected region, and this is perhaps the chief feature of any such inflammation. To the lungs, therefore, are applied to relieve congestion. The most universally effective way to accomplish the purpose, I believe, is by means of the hot mustard foot bath administered to the patient in bed. To the uninitiated, I dare say, this seems about as practicable as it would be to give a fellow a shave and hair cut while he plays a set of tennis. But that only goes to show what a blessing a trained nurse can administer. A trained nurse can administer a hot mustard foot bath to a patient in bed, and without doing any damage to the patient, and, in the earlier stages, a nurse may be trained to administer a hot mustard foot bath properly without going away and giving two or three years of her time to a patient in bed. I have a horrible suspicion that some good housewives have attempted to give one as directed by me. To some of any others interested I would suggest that the easiest way to learn how to do it is by watching a good nurse do it. I once tried to run a mustard bath for a patient in bed, and I know something about the dangers of theoretical instruction.

The hot mustard foot bath achieves its object when the patient cannot get on his feet, and, in the case of the sweating patient, any considerable amount of impurities which should be eliminated from the bronchial tubes, but because the sweating is not evidence that considerable blood has been withdrawn from the chest to the skin surface and the extremities.

Attempts to administer or take hot mustard foot baths, and, in the case of the sweating patient, any considerable amount of impurities which should be eliminated from the bronchial tubes, but because the sweating is not evidence that considerable blood has been withdrawn from the chest to the skin surface and the extremities.

Persons who know neither the nature of bronchitis nor the means of action or purpose of the hot mustard foot bath are generally confirmed believers in the "cold" process and consequently fearful of "taking more cold" or "catching cold." No intelligent person need have any anxiety about that; no ill effect will ensue even though the patient throws off his blankets and takes the air in the middle of winter.

TO AWARD BUTTONS IN THRIFT CAMPAIGN

Thrift buttons have been secured at each week in connection with the thrift campaign. One day each week is bank day, when the deposits are made by classes and rows in the assembly room. The class or row having 100 per cent deposits, that is, each person depositing, will secure a button of red and white. Records are kept, and a cup presented to the highest class at the end of the year. Last year's cup, to go to the 35 fourth hour civics class, Miss Abel, Keesey, teacher, Miss Marjorie Earle, treasurer, has been received but has not yet been presented.

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

This is equal for prompt results. Take a spoonful three or four times a day, and saves you about $1.

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup. To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2 1/2 ounces of Pine in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use distilled water, honey, or any other sweetener. Either way, you make a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is a good remedy and tastes very pleasant.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be accompanied by phlegm. The cause is the same—irritated membranes—and this Pine and Syrup combination will stop it. It soothes the throat, loosens the phlegm, and, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment. Pine is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine, with directions, and don't forget—thing else. Guaranteed to give absolute relief on coughs or colds. The Pine Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

OBEY BUILDING CODE, WARNING

Get Permits Before Work Starts, Advice of Building Inspection Department.

Warning to contractors and citizens in general is sounded in letters being sent out this week by the building inspection branch of the city engineer's department advising that permits be secured before building jobs are begun and not after they are half-completed, as has been the practice in the past. This is particularly necessary in the case of the new zoning ordinance in force, which prohibits certain types of buildings being erected in certain areas, and otherwise affects building activities.

It is further urged that people buying property to convert it to some other use, first consult the city engineering department to see if it will be legal under the zoning code. Recently a man bought two lots in the central zone of the fourth ward, proposing to start a meat market. After acquiring the property an exciting plans ready he learned that he could not start such a business in that zone. As a result he holds the lots but has no butcher shop. This is but one of several such instances which have arisen recently.

Permits are required for all types of construction, installation of furnaces and other heating equipment, and all repair jobs which cost more than $100.

BEAUTY ECONOMY
SATISFACTION
Seldom does one find such a desirable quality combined with two such sensible ones as you do in plate or sterling silver. The beauty is apparent in the first swift glance, the economy becomes evident at the mention of the price, and the satisfaction is proved through long years of service, during which the original beauty does not fade.

At the Theatres

AT THE APOLLO.
Little Jack Johnson is holding forth at the Apollo this week, and is winning still more hosts of admirers in his picture, "The Body Guard." Jack is an immigrant whose father died before he left the old country, and whose mother had a son without a friend. However, he makes many new friends in the new land, and is placed by Claude Rainswater.

Children crowded the theater Monday afternoon and howled with delight at the antics, while the attitude of older people is one of wonder that a small child could be so amusing. Jack is a real "clown," and his antics could take such a hold on their hearts.

AT THE MYERS.
If only all problems could be presented in as interesting a way, and settled as easily as the one in "Nice People," now playing at the Myers theater, the millennium would not be far off.

Whether or not one agrees with the picture in its "expose" of life as it is lived today by the young and rich, one must agree that in most respects, it is a picture of the future. The picture is a picture of the future, and it is a picture of the future.

home of Mrs. Morrissey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wesendonck.

The Country club ladies' entertainment, which was scheduled for Tuesday, has been postponed on account of the funeral of Mrs. Charles Mabbitt.

Oscar A. Christopherson and Miss Edna Simerson this city, were married at Rockford last Thursday. They will make their home with Mr. Christopherson's mother this winter.

Despite the offer of $100 and expenses, the Edgerton coaches have refused to give the Monroe high school team a return game for Armistice Day, Nov. 11. Edgerton beat Monroe, 13-6 in the opening game of the season. The State School for the Deaf may possibly furnish Monroe competition on that date if Edgerton is not persuaded.

Purcell services for Mrs. C. F. Mabbitt, widow of the late Charles Mabbitt, prominent tobacco dealer, were held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the Congregational church.

Danielle Kellogg was born in Janesville, Wis., and was 72 years old at the time of her death. She was married to Charles F. Mabbitt in Edgerton June 25, 1871. To this union were born four children—Leora, public librarian at Galveston, Texas; Walter and Jessie, Edgerton; and Mrs. Frank McCrea, Muskegon, Mich. She is also survived by five grandchildren and one brother, Frank Kellogg, Edgerton. Mr. Mabbitt died in April, 1924.

Mrs. Mabbitt spent all her married life in Edgerton and was one of the best loved citizens. Until a few months ago, when her illness became critical, she was active in everything for the religious, charitable and civic betterment of Edgerton. She was a member of the Congregational church and the Monday club.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Keegan, who died at her home on Mechanic street Sunday morning, were held Tuesday morning at St. Joseph's church. Mrs. Keegan was born at Castle Ren, Ireland, Aug. 15, 1845, and was 77 years of age at the time of her death. At the age of seven years she came to America with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Keegan, who located on a farm near Haverhill, Wis. She was married Feb. 15, 1865, to Martin Keegan, who died at their farm home in the town of Dunkirk in September, 1903. Eight children survive her—Mrs. S. P. Madden, Mrs. J. Madden and Katherine Keegan, Edgerton; Mrs. Thomas Madden, Janesville; Martin, Virgo; James, Madison City, Ia.; William, Stoughton, and Hubert, Oregon. She is also survived by 15 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, a brother, Michael Keegan, Ia. and a sister, Mrs. James Hall, Stoughton.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kellogg spent the week-end in Milwaukee with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kellogg.

Messrs. and Misses Rudolph Ellingsrud and Hiram Davis are visiting Chicago relatives.

Miss Rose Barrett, Milwaukee, spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. William Barrett.

Funeral services for D. J. Saunders were held at the Albion church at 2 p. m. Saturday. The remains were shipped here from Texas. Mr. Saunders was a brother of Mrs. Elsie Main, Albion.

Rockford Cats to Bring Great Outfit

When the Janesville Black Cat basketball team steps upon the floor some time next month in its first game of the season against the Thomas Cats of Rockford, they will face an enemy that will give them a severe tussle. The Forest City Fusillies have gone out into the highways and annexed a dashing set of players. The team at Rockford promises to be one of the fastest in the middle west. If preliminary announcement is followed, six former University of Chicago athletes will be on the squad. They will include "Pete" Crisler, present freshman basketball coach at Chicago; Paul Hinkle, assistant coach to Pat Page at Butler; Clarence Vollmer, Robert Birkhoff, William Gorkas and John Ryan. Don White of Purdue, Henry Reitsch of Illinois and Henry England of Chicago are also members.

It is expected that the Bower city Fellies will start their practice sessions in the near future.

Can you build a brick house without bricks?

If a man told you he was going to build a brick house without using any bricks, you'd think something was wrong with him, wouldn't you?

Well, then, what about the man or woman who plans to build a sturdy human body but neglects to eat the kind of food that builds that kind of body?

Many "refined" and denatured foods are lacking in the mineral elements which the body requires—especially for bones, nerves and teeth.

You do get the right mineral elements in Grape-Nuts—the delicious cereal food made from whole wheat flour and malted barley.

Every bit of the nutrition which Nature puts into the grains is retained in making Grape-Nuts. Lime phosphates, iron, magnesium, potassium—are all there. And then, too, there's that wonderful flavor and crispness that makes eating a joy.

Try Grape-Nuts with cream or milk for breakfast or lunch tomorrow, and see if you haven't been missing an unusually delicious and sustaining food. Sold wherever good food is sold or served.

FINANCE

Wall Street Review.

New York.—Financial prices movements took place in accordance with a continuation of Monday's selling of oil equipment and domestic tin. The purchasing of tobacco shares improved in tone, and a thousand shares of Mexican Petroleum sold at 27 1/2, and a new high record for the year. The Pan-American shares moved up more than 1 point, and the announcement of extra dividend was a pleasant surprise.

Mexican Petroleum fell back 22 1/2 points, the first in a hour and 22 1/2 points. American "A" and "B" reacted in sympathy. Jewell Tin climbed and the foreign tin market was active. Domestic tin, Argentine, and American Tobacco Consolidated. Cigar cases moved over a point. American Tank, Consolidated Gas, St. Louis Northwestern preferred, and Iron Products, all advanced. Oil and Petroleum, 10 points and Pacific Oil and Shingles also were weak. Bismuth, 10 points. Trucking, Chain Belting, Railway Steel Springs, Pacific Coast Lumber and Cane Products.

Financial market was comparatively abundant when the pressure of offerings of new issues was great, but the market became low again, following the announcement of the results of the elections. Investment and speculation stocks showed a decline of 1 to 3 points. Low last night's fuel figures in a number of active issues. Indirectly, the market was affected by the news of the legit, Standard of California, American Car and American Express, down 8 points or more. Partially, a very set in following the bid up of the American Car and appearance of better buying support for Baldwin, Studebaker Corn Producers, but a renewed decline in Mexican Petroleum and the bid up of oil products. Tuesday's decline of 15 points in Central road of New Jersey proved fresh selling from speculative concern. Cattle market, however, the Cattle market opened at 4 1/2 cents, but the market was not so steady higher in the final hour under the impetus of extensive short covering and netting buying in a selective issue, particularly in the Cattle market, Georgia. The cattle

The Black Menace

A CRAIG KENNEDY STORY

By ARTHUR B. REEVES.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Clare Kennedy, finding on the death of a respected uncle that she has been a victim of a blackmailer, she appeals to Ray, a society detective, and later to Craig Kennedy, the great champion detective to aid her. Clare is engaged to be married to Jack Speed, a newspaper reporter whose career is brilliant but has determined the son shall earn a living. Kennedy also has a warning from Ripley Gray, wealthy bachelor, not to attempt to aid Clare. Driven by the Grady home, Kennedy finds that the rich man is dead and investigates the case. Ray and Kennedy agree on a plan of action.

An effort to kidnap Clare Kennedy is made, but owing to the rapid work of Jack Speed, it is frustrated. After one of the kidnappers escapes and is followed. In the meantime Kennedy finds evidence that Gray has been sent to him in a letter. The detective discovers a country house where it is believed the gang has its headquarters. Mrs. Celia Brezhkaya, a beautiful and mysterious Russian, enters the story.

They were both excessively glad to see us, especially as we came apparently so well introduced by Brezhkaya, whom everyone here seemed to recognize and called by her first name, Celia. Nor did they or anyone else ask any inconvenient questions, probably tacitly, let someone else might ask the same.

We strolled into one of the rooms in which the game was being played. Play was going on, fast and furious, with much laughter and conviviality, although it was evident that all could not win. The game was being played with huge stacks of chips upon the tables, and the players all excited and chatting easily.

As I looked about it did not appear that there was any real excitement here, but yet it was quite a comfortable gathering, and everyone seemed to be upon the most intimate terms with the others.

As I noted the gossip I gathered that in another room quite a stiff game of bridge was in progress with another party. This room was very interesting. Men and women seemed about equally divided at the little green tables.

We passed to another room, where we could hear the click of a roulette ball. This was by far the most interesting, and we lingered. All the women were dressed in evening gowns, they might have come from families of wealth. We were introduced to several. But it was evident that all were passing under assumed names. I studied the faces carefully. There was no ordinary casino.

It did not take long to find out that these laws were held in scant respect here, apparently. Menstruals flowed and were ordered at once to someone else's expense with no disguise of money. It was no place for a piker. Altogether there was a luxurious atmosphere.

As I looked about I recalled having heard before of such temptations, but never on a scale that I had approached this. Stories had cropped out of society, girls caught in the coils of such life, men afraid to admit losses to their husbands, men who were afraid to go to bed at night which they could not escape.

As I was beneath the gay veneer, I knew that gambling such as this could lead only to worse evils, as studied the faces I wondered.

Why Neighbors All About Me Now Wash with Green Arrow

By JANE LEE

The first time I learned there was major class and other "differences" in our world was when I was just as much surprised as I am now. I had heard that there were false pills in every bottle of Green Arrow. I knew there must be some reason why it stuck to the clothes like glue. I had heard you after noticed that ordinary laundry soap does not do very much. Well, the fact is that it does not. It comes when you use it. It has no cleaning power and it is put into laundry bars just to make a little soap appear like a full bar.

We women have The Palmolive Co. to thank for giving the home GREEN ARROW—a new laundry bar that has no "differences" in it and that never gives you laundry hands. More than that, they make it with olive oil—a new idea to us, but an old one to fabric experts, who always wash their new material with olive oil soap. Haven't you wanted your clothes to be as white and soft as when you were a child?

Well, that's exactly the results you will get from using GREEN ARROW—the same results that the makers of the fabric themselves obtain. You'll save many bars a month, too, because GREEN ARROW cleans all that dirt cleaning power. Naturally it goes twice as far as a bar that is only a half to two-thirds size. I know a woman's prominent magazine that tested GREEN ARROW and reported: "One-third to one-half of what we ordinarily use in our soda test gives perfectly satisfactory results." Think of a laundry soap that can be used on the most delicate fabrics without the least harm! The magazine's experts made with GREEN ARROW, just to prove how mild and new it is.

What tragedies might be concealed behind the sleek exterior, for it is never in the bright light of such places that the tragedies are revealed. They serpentine their slimy way into the decent places. It is in the homes that the ruined lives, broken family ties and lost honor wreck their wayward course.

It seemed all very risky to me, although I tried to appear at ease and to think it was quite the usual thing. Now, and then, as Brezhkaya fitted in and out she would warn and talk to us as we chatted with whomsoever happened to be nearest. We had joined the group about the roulette table and were now and then staking something more in a spirit of rivalry than anything else. Looking or winning with equal grace and careful not to get in very deeply, as befitting strange moths for the first time buzzing near the candle.

Suddenly I caught sight of Brian Thorne who had evidently just arrived and made his way first of all to Brezhkaya. I noted also that she was visibly pleased to see him. He joined the group and Thorne was evident that both Thorne and Brezhkaya, if nothing else, were the life of any party they might consent to favor. I wondered whether that was the purpose of their being there, or whether they might be principals in this venture.

Thorne had not been with the group five minutes before the stately butler moved up and informed him in a low tone that there was a call on the telephone for him. He excused himself from us with just a trace of annoyance.

It was only a few moments when he returned, but to the group he caught the watchful eye of Brezhkaya and motioned for her to meet him. What was said I could not gather, but there was a look of annoyance on her face also.

It seems that I have scarcely got out here when I must tear myself away. I overheard as he moved out into the hall where the butler had brought his coat, hat and stick, which he had called for already.

Brezhkaya's answer was inaudible though she plainly did not want him to go.

As they talked, Thorne seemed to be trying to reassure her to promise her something. Almost it seemed as if there were some bond between them as near akin to love as two such sophisticated persons might feel.

Still, there was something strange about her solicitude. The message, too, was mysterious.

Thorne left quickly in his car and Brezhkaya, who had been so kind to introduce me to her, was left alone. There was something forced about even her smile.

CHAPTER 10. Brezhkaya approached us with a very beautiful woman whom she wanted us to meet. "Mrs. James," she introduced, although I knew that it was a false name, and I am sure that that was the name of "Mr. Thorne" and "Mr. Gray."

"Who was she?" I wondered. At once she seemed to be very interested in Kennedy, but Brezhkaya was not. The instant she saw that Mrs. James should fall to my escort as we sauntered in toward a beautifully paneled lounge and dining room. I do not think I was quite as attentive to Mrs. James as I might have been, for I had seen just enough to convince me that Brezhkaya, now that Thorne was gone, was actually "vamping" Craig.

"Nor did I relish it, as they walked under the light and I had chosen a table, then moved on and around an angle in the little alcove where I could not see them, and even could scarcely hear them.

"I observed my companion, with a forced gaiety. "Perhaps," I hazarded, "it had been a hard day and I cannot tell the Exchange out of my head. Let us forget it." I laughed. She inquired shooting at me a glance which I could not interpret.

Did she really know who I was and that I was posing? Was she interested, just for some reason, I might recognize her?

I passed the query off as easily as I could, finding that she was not disposed toward confidence. Nor did it take me long to see that she too was quite interested in the couple around the angle. Gradually it dawned on me that she knew Kennedy, at least knew who he was. I tried to lead the conversation, but she refused to be led. Could it have been that she was planning some confidence to Kennedy?

Dinner Stories

One of the most amusing of Mr. George Robey's stories concerns a guided youth of somewhat effeminate tendencies, who found himself "wronged" by a girl. Realizing that his only chance lay in a new country, he decided to go to America, and as he could not pay his passage money, tried to get a job on one of the boats crossing the Atlantic.

Ship after ship he tried in vain, and at last began to despair of ever getting out of England—slipping people did not seem to like him. At last he tried a big liner on the verge of sailing, and found that a stoker had been signed on, went aboard, and was directed below by the captain, and disappeared.

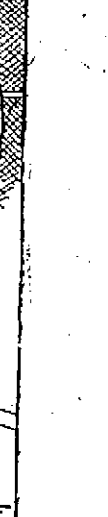

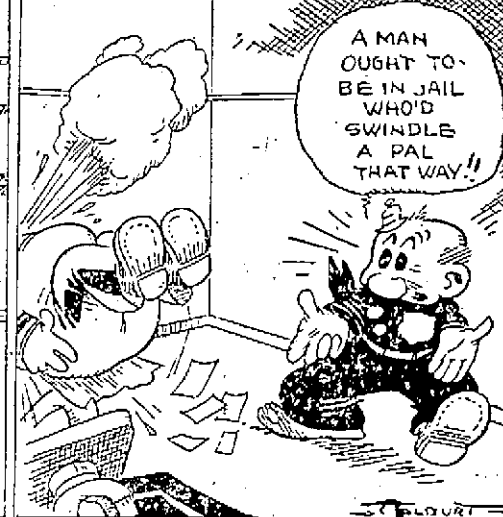

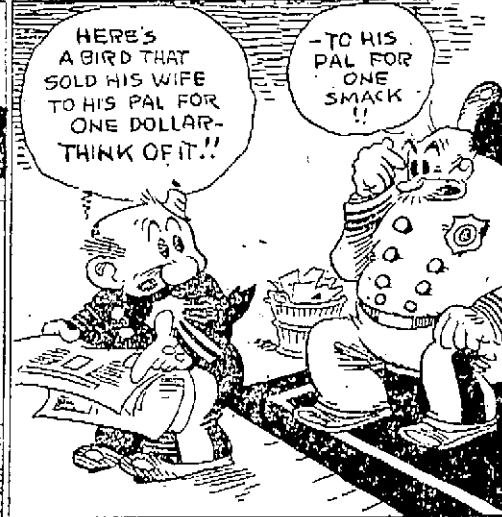

Nothing was seen or heard of him for three days, but on the fourth day the skipper suddenly came upon a resplendent figure in full yachting kit, with glasses slung over one shoulder, promenading the deck. "What the... are you doing here?" he demanded. "I thought I told you to go below!" The youth gazed rapturously at the frate officer, stepped back, tapped him lightly on the shoulder, and said, "Oh, haven't you heard? I've left."—Tatler (London).

It was a very hot day and the fat commuter who had wanted to catch the 4.15, but who had passed through the gate at four-fifty-six, He made a valiant race, but was out-classed, and as he returned, perspiring and weary, an obsequious red cap relieved him of his grips and inquired solicitously:

"Was you tryin' to catch that train, Cap?" "Certainly not," replied the victim irritably. "I was only chasing it out of the yard."

TODAY'S RECIPES.
Huevos and Eggs—Take the one item of bacon alone. It is so easy to split it in the cooking. Burned bacon, partly burned and underdone are so unappealing and it is so easy to serve one's guests properly cooked. The secret of being a good cook is not in the ability to prepare a lot of fancy dishes but in the well cooked and appetizing appearance of the most everyday dish—bacon, for instance. Put the evenly sliced bacon into a fairly hot frying pan, and keep the fire under it low, gently pressing the bacon with a fork to try the fat out and to brown it evenly and keep it from curling. If you have a fire in the oven the best way to get your bacon crisp and evenly browned is to put it in a pan in the oven and let it bake. The bacon can then be removed to a hot platter and the eggs fried in the fat according to taste.

New the Toast—Some people prefer their bread to be thin and toasted crisp, some like thick slices heavily browned and some just medium. Some daily soups like the crusts removed, but whatever the individual taste may be so to it that the toast is evenly browned and that it is made just before serving if it is to be served buttered or dry and whether it is made on the good old fashioned coal or gas burner or on the most up-to-date electric toaster.

Corned Beef—Wash the corned beef, put it in cold water to which a little baking soda has been added and let it come to a boil. This will get away with excess salt. Put into fresh cold water, and bring it to a boil and let simmer gently three or four hours according to the size of the piece. The cabbage should be added about an hour before the meat is taken out and the potatoes 15 minutes later.

HALLOWEEN.
And now comes Halloween, the children of all the festive times of the year, when fates and fortunes are told and trickery and spook work have with the possessions of the unwary. Ghosts, hobgoblins, witches and goblins are properly feared. The secret of the inventive hostess no entertainment of the whole year's rivals Halloween. She can give her original soul full rein.

Of course, everyone knows that pumpkins, heads, real or artificial, black cats, witches and corn stalks, harvest fruits of all kinds decorate the house or hall where the entertainment is to take place. Every kind of costume is appropriate and almost any kind of game can be played. Many are the attempts to peer into the future and find out what one's true love may be. Some of these tests may be used at a party as part of the entertainment. The girls of the party may be induced to go slowly downstairs backwards holding a mirror to see the face of a lover in the glass. Any hostess can see a lot of possibilities in this feat. Then there is the water experiment which consists in walking a certain distance with the mouth full of water without swallowing or spilling a drop. First person of opposite sex who meets is your fate.

Why the Nation Demands Calumet

BEST BY TEST

—because it has more than the ordinary leavening strength; it raises millions of bakings every day to a light perfectly baked perfection that cannot be equaled.

—because it contains white-egg—the vital element that gives the housewives protection against using a baking powder that has lost its original leavening strength. It assures light, tender, tasteful things every time you bake.

—because it is economical—pure, sure and wholesome.

That's why the sale of Calumet is over 150% greater than that of any other baking powder.

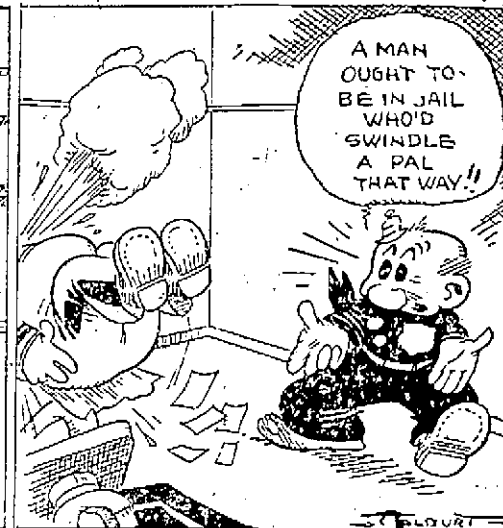

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 ounces. Some baking powders come in 12 ounce instead of 16 ounce cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

Chicago-Tiger Game Tops Midwest Interest This Week

ILLINOIS-MICHIGAN GAME MEANS FIGHT; BADGERS ARE IDLE

Busy Man's Sport Page

BY FRANK SINCLAIR

HERE'S THE latest. Horse show pitching has become so popular in some places that indoor courts for winter games are being constructed. In Chicago, proprietors of bowling alleys are buying courts in spare space. One place has gone so far as to hire an expert to teach the embryo tappers the game. With so many pitchers in southern Wisconsin, it will not be surprising to find the owners of some buildings in greater use.

THE STATEMENT was made the other day that basketball was originally a girls' game. As a matter of interest, the busy man looked it up and discovered that the game was invented in 1891 by James Naismith, under suggestion of Dr. H. G. Mullik that there was an opportunity to fill in between the football and baseball season with an indoor game. It was played first by Y. M. C. A. as then athletic clubs and the National Guard took it up. Schools and colleges adopted it next and their girls' institutions.

"We have heard the expression, 'fighting his way through life.' Here is a college boy who is fighting his way through school—using his fists. Xenophon Kakuros has taken up boxing in order to pay his tuition to Pitt dental school at Pittsburgh. He intends to quit the game after he gets his sheepskin."

THE FOX RIVER VALLEY high school athletic league has some right ahead with its plans to get the organization under way and has scheduled its basketball games. Eight schools are members. The Fox River league was started after Coach Crandall of Milton college took the lead in the formation of the Rock River Valley High School Athletic league last summer. The southern Wisconsin circuit is expected to have a meeting in the near future to get set for basketball.

THERE are many stories about just why the Beloit Fairies did not get their state championship series with Kenosha and Racine. Manager Chubb says that the postponed games came after Beloit's season was done. That seems a weak excuse. Chubb's excuse to quit the Mid-West league because it only gives substance to rumors floating around this section that the Fairies are finding the season too long to get out from under to form a league around Beloit.

JOE RAY, Chicago holder of nine running records, beat Jack Kello, holder of middlestates title in 125-pound class, in amateur boxing match.

Hot Off the Gridiron.—California agrees to sign contract for two football games with Iowa, first to be played in Los Angeles next year and the other in Iowa City in 1924. Badgers spend time on the line. Stueck's critics met at Chicago in attempt to strengthen team work. Princeton goes through long signal drill and dummy tacking. Jones gives Iowa stiff talk and makes indications of changes for the backfield. Abrahamson, guard, and Cox, tackle, out of Minnesota lineup with injuries. White gives Ohio State a tongue lashing and "skull" practice. Illinois works the strengthen ends for Michigan-Michigan to release line for Illinois-Purdue in field runs and passing. Beloit college-Lake Forest game to be played at Beloit, Nov. 11.

Beloit Fairies demand Midwest league withdraw Simmons franchise.

Scraps About Scrappers.—Carnegie challenges Sisk. Zanecho Villa, American Flyweight champion, beat Danny Edwards, Pacific coast champion, at Boston (10). Sammy Mandell trains in Chicago for bout with Jack Wolfe.

Badger Teams in National Soccer

New York.—The draw for second round of competition for the National Soccer championship announced Monday. Includes matches among contestants throughout the east and middle west. The drawings were made by the challenger cup committee of the U. S. Football Association.

The protest of the Vikings football club of this city against New York for using a player not properly registered, was sustained by the committee and the game between the two teams ordered replayed.

Second round matches must be played on or before Nov. 5. The draw in part follows:

Illinois and Wisconsin; Sparta Union vs Canada Club; Blue White, Racine vs Erie City; P. C. Thistles vs Swedish American F. C. Rockford.

Michigan Industrial F. C. vs Detroit or Windsor; Denver, Walker, Vito F. C. vs Sons of Italia F. C. Rising Star F. C. vs Jeanette F. C. Rockford.

Jefferson Knights Form Bowling Loop

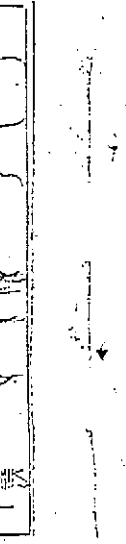

Jefferson.—The local council, 1564, Knights of Columbus, has organized a four team, five-man bowling league to roll Monday evenings. After the first night of rolling, the squads will be composed of three men each, the substitutes changing weekly. The teams and their members are:

Ninns—F. Hauser, E. J. Aughter, William Freudenreich, R. O. Fischer and S. W. Shanon.

Pitts—Robert Endl, F. M. Beck, William Weeks, E. J. Noble and Ray Diehlman.

Three teams tore off perfect wins in the Knights of Columbus circuit Monday night. The Joliet continued to hold tight to first place by virtue of a straight victory over the Balboas, one game by eight men.

Several shifts occurred. Jay taking three games from the Ponce de Leon, the Cortez quarter broke the tie between these squads and went into third place. The Kennetts moved to fourth position by beating the Marquettes for a brace. The defeat sealed that outfit from slipping into sixth, the loss of three by the Balboas giving them the opportunity.

DeSoto was high individual with 225 with D. Cunningham scored high with 267.

High team score for three games was 2,408, hit by the DeSotos. The Joliet had high single game of 556.

Two Milton Men Hurt, but "11" Is Ready for Champion

From a survey of both teams' records to date, it would seem that Cannon has the edge, especially in defensive strength. In scoring ability, however, they appear on a par, though not too much reliance can be placed on past results. The fact that Cannon played DeChambeau to a scoreless tie and barely nipped out Wisconsin School of Mines by three points, should not be taken to mean that Cannon has a weak backfield, according to Coach Crandall of Milton, but rather that the Catholics have been up against stiff opposition.

Blacks Still Out. It was announced definitely Monday night that Level Blake, Janesville youth, will be unable to play because of injuries in the Carroll and Platteville games. The speedy halfback will undoubtedly be in shape for the game with the Wisconsin School of Mines Nov. 9. The squad suffered another blow Monday when Chadsey, regular fullback, was unable to attend classes or practice because of illness. It is expected he will be back by Wednesday.

With Blake and Chadsey both out, the team play at the backfield is demoralized, and shifting of Capt. Russell Hill from tackle to left half means a serious weakness on that side of the line. In May's practice scrimmage against Union high school, C. Hill took Chadsey's place at fullback and Peterson substituted for the former at quarter. Hubert, who is being developed to fill Blake's shoes, and Capt. Russell Hill gained at will through the light Union line.

McNitt Comes Home. Milton supporters are rejoicing over the return of Howard ("Butch") McNitt, former Union high school star, who had earned a backfield berth on the college eleven last fall before indolence got hold of him. McNitt reported to Coach Crandall Friday afternoon and entered classes Monday.

There is a possibility Milton will play Mount Morris college, Ill., next

OLARI

Yank Four Men Off Blue Firsts; Leary to Quarter

Janesville high school's football team was given the "razz" at practice Monday afternoon by Coach Warfield. The raking over the coals came as a consequence of the feeble showing made by the team against Monroe last Saturday.

Four men were yanked off the first team and sent back to keep company with the seconds, R. Leary, who still limps, will run the team in the place of Knipp. Meek and Hallett, end and tackle, will be replaced by Renaud and Bennisson.

John Young will return to his old position at fullback, Dickinson going to half. Manser, a 170-pounder and an 11 second man, will be sent in at left guard, Baker going to the second squad.

Strenuous work is being started to get the team ready for practice at the Boyle city next Saturday.

R. F. B. May Revive Basketball Team

Notice is given out that the R. F. B. basketball team will be revived this season. A tentative schedule has been started, harder and longer than a year ago.

The R. F. B. team will probably be composed of local talent, picked from the "A" All-Stars of the year ago, though some of their players have announced their intention of going with the Black Cats. Others may be recruited from high school graduates. Prospects are for a light

The team is to be strictly amateur. Games may be arranged with "Ted" Hager manager, 563 Locust street, telephone 552.

Jefferson Guard Renews Cage Team

(By Gazette Correspondent.) Jefferson basketball practice for Jefferson Wagon company 114 Wisconsin National guard, begins Tuesday at the armory. According to present indications, prospects for the team are bright.

Five regulars are back. They are Capt. Raymond Langer, Earl Baumgard, Franklin Ladden, Thomas Dax, and Edward Plank. L. Fahrman, center, and Louis Deulow, guard, will perhaps return again later in the season. The latter is ill.

Several high school stars may join the quintet.

The Jefferson team made a fine record last year. A meeting is to be held to elect officers. A schedule for the coming season will be completed. Teams desiring games with the local outfit may write to Capt. Charles T. Lane.

EAST CENTER WINS FROM WEST, 6 TO 4

East Center—The local basketball team defeated West Center Sunday afternoon, 6 to 4.

CITY LEAGUE MEETS AT C. C. TUESDAY

Officers and members of the city bowling league will meet at the Chamber of Commerce at 8 p. m. Tuesday. Final arrangements for the 1922-23 season are to be made.

MOZART CIGAR

Mild as a May Morning—and as fragrant

As you smoke Mozart, please do us the favor to ask yourself two questions—"Is it mild? Is it fragrant?"

We have cured and blended the tobaccos in Mozart to get true mildness without losing true fragrance. Have we succeeded? Mozart sales—large and increasing—seem to prove it.

An uncommonly mild cigar of Havana fragrance—beautifully made.

Mozart Cigar is made by Consolidated Cigar Corporation, New York. Distributed by LEWIS-LEIDERSDORF CO. Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

MARATHON MOTOR OIL

After Oiling Hundreds of Cars—

EVERY day—as car after car comes to our attention—we see the results of good lubrication and of poor lubrication. We know from experience how important it is to keep a finely built piece of machinery like the automobile engine lubricated with an oil of real quality.

MARATHON MOTOR OIL, which we selected to handle after a careful investigation, is scientifically manufactured to meet the lubrication needs of each type of motor. There are five grades of Marathon, and the proper grade for each make of car or truck is listed in the Marathon Guide. MARATHON MOTOR OIL, used according to the Guide, is guaranteed to give satisfaction.

MARATHON MOTOR OIL has been proven of such quality that we unhesitatingly recommend it to our patrons. Try it by all means. Thousands have found it "Best in the long run."

Rock Island, Gang City

At last, according to John Looney's statement, the gang walked to the front of the building, and fired a shot point blank into the man's stomach. Then they turned in their hands and drew away. "Did they get me?" Connor whispered to his father, when the attackers had gone. Then, according to John Looney, with his dying breath the boy whispered the name of the man who had fired the death shot, and that man, John Looney says, is going to be held to an accounting either by the law or by the Looney crowd.

The scorecard crowd, hearing the start of the fusillade of bullets, had moved toward Market Square, the Sherman hotel corner and, when they saw who it was fighting, had moved right back again. Turning the corner from the street the crowd saw to the Sherman hotel street, the crowd's members had realized they were in the direct line of the bullets, which were flying fast and wild by that time, and many are the funny stories told of the various ways in which people adopted and how dignified was once and forever lost in the mad scramble.

"It was every man for himself," a Third Avenue merchant explained. "Every man did the job darned well."

Police Arrested Five

After the smoke had lifted and Connor Looney had breathed his last at a hospital and John Looney and others of his tribe had departed to their "house on the hill," the Rock Island police hethought themselves that someone should be arrested, inasmuch as three thousand persons more or less, had seen the parties in the attacking cars. Billburg, Holzapple, Buckley and Drost were taken into custody, also Pedigo—not because he shot at the Billburg crowd, but because when he went calmly down to the Looney's judge's papers after the shooting was over, a revolver was found in his person. "Connor," he explained, "was the charge against him, and he was released on bond, departing immediately to the Looney hillside stronghold. Billburg also was given bond, and has the strong-est lawyers in Northwestern Illinois as his attorneys.

What does Rock Island think of it all, anyway? Well, first and foremost, a large part of the town is terrified. Some citizens, the mayor, for instance, laugh at that, but all they need to do is disguise their identity or send out an investigator and find out for themselves.

A traveling man, standing in Rock Island's biggest drug store, expressed one phase of the idea one day last week.

"You ask me why I'm not around here more," he told the proprietor, "it is because you've got one of those bullets just missed my head at Third and Seventeenth last week, and I've got my health and want to keep it. I don't go near that crowd again, and I can show you a lot of people like me who won't. The window down there has got a bunch of patches over bullet holes now, and you can find lead from revolvers in every telephone pole in sight. What's the use of taking chances, anyway?"

Where Bullets May Fly Any Time

Similarly, there is a large part of Rock Island that is staying in at night, and intends to continue to stay in until the gang gets the other, or the penitentiary gets them both.

Again—and notwithstanding Mayor Schriver's denials—there is also a large part of Rock Island that will not venture near the Looney home, situated pretty in the heart of Rock Island's residential section. It nevertheless is barricaded almost like a fortress, guarded constantly, and, as the Billburg and Looney crowd have exchanged occasional fusillades there at night, Rock Island's peace-loving citizens think it highly unhealthy to be in the vicinity.

A visitor asked the directions to the Looney home, so he could interview John Looney.

"Don't go near there," the clerk in Rock Island's hotel told him in all seriousness. "Find out what you want somewhere else, but stay clear of this place."

"Why," asked the visitor blandly. "You might get shot, that's why—they're not in very good temper over these days."

"But I want to get there," the visitor said. "If you're that crazy, take a Longview car and ask the motorman to put you off at Looney's. And, whatever you do, walk down the middle of the street and keep your hands at your sides."

Similar exhortations were received from a photographer's shop, from an electric store, which also serves as a news agency, from the street car motorman and from two passengers who happened to listen on the front platform.

Quite touching was the earnestness of a minister who happened to be getting off at the same street as the stranger, and who asked for the Looney place.

"I hope you know what you're doing, young man," he said. "Incidentally, beware of a very fierce dog they have there, too."

The approach to Looney's is up a side entrance to a front porch, the porch giving a splendid view of the street, but enabling an observer to be hidden himself.

A young man who looked little less than the accepted version of a bandit—"one of the boys I got out of a little trouble over in Davenport," Looney explained later—was stretched out on guard on the porch and pointed a surly thumb at the door when the visitor inquired if Looney was inside. Incidentally, quickly roving eyes took the visitor in from head to foot, lingering particularly on the bulk of his pockets around his hips.

In the Looney Citadel

Looney came to the door, with Pedigo beside him—the former in a frail, delicate, appealing man well in his fifties, with a quick, nervous manner of glancing around and an eye that seemed to take in everything at a glance; the latter a stocky, built, roughly dressed young man who looked as though he would be beautifully at home in a rough and tumble fight, the rougher the better.

"What do you want?" Looney demanded sharply, then became the better of courtesy when he found the visitor's mission was a friendly one.

Looney talked readily on all subjects. He admitted he had been a stormy petrel in Rock Island thirty years, but said he couldn't go to his New Mexico ranch and live a peaceful life if he tried.

"There is something in me that tells me 'No, not as long as they fight me, never while they fight me,' and so I keep on."

Looney denied that the News was run for blackmail purposes. He pointed out, which is a fact, that he never has been sued for libel, although a verdict against him would mean imprisonment, as it did in Drost's case, or the seizure of his plant.

"If anyone can get one man to say I bled him for a cent I am willing to put on the black cap here and now," Looney almost shouted, and there was sincerity in his words. He admitted that persons, claiming to be from the News, had demanded money from Rock Island citizens on threats of printing something damaging to the persons approached.

"That's not my fault, though, is it?" he asked. "I have no way of knowing when some lying crook is going out and saying, 'I'm from the News. Come across or I'll print the dope on you.' I've told Rock Island people time and again to call me up and ask me if I'm going to print anything about them, and if I am I'll tell them so. That's all I can do."

Looney said his paper in all the strife-blown years of its existence had not made him a penny—had done well to get him an even break. "I make money from my law practice—that's what I live on," he explained, and Rock Island admits he has many cases in court.

What stand is the Rock Island Argus taking in the affair—the paper that has an armed guard before its editorial rooms, the paper whose directors Looney has with everything but his prototype in each issue of the News, the paper at whose door he lays his son's death?

"It's a fight of two rival gangs, purely and simply," the Argus owners say. "The charges that we're mixed up in it are ridiculous. We have to have a guard at our door with a man like Looney at large and saying the things he is saying against us."

Rock Island, as a town, might have gotten over the Looney case more quickly if it had had rest from the gunplay when Connor Looney was taken to the hospital. But Saturday night there was a murder—negro against negro—and Monday night another one, negro against Mexican, following losses in a crooked gambling game.

Get the vice ring out of here," the better citizens of the town are demanding. "Get the painted women off the streets—not for the two or three weeks they have been absent, but forever. Clean up Rock Island so it won't be known as the vice and booze center of its whole territory."

The mayor directed some raids on bootleggers and says the town is as clean now as any town of its size in the United States. The townspeople want to know.

"Let's see a week or two go by without any shooting," they say. "Let's see Eli Gabel's and Connor Looney's murders punished. Let's see this town made so it is safe for our wives or daughters to go out at night without being harassed by some pig-sticker or shot down by a gangster's bullet."

Rock Island's citizenry—like the celebrated gentleman from Missouri—wants to be shown.
